Q-BAN BEAUTY SHAMPOO

Base of Coconut Oil, Lathers Freely, Dries Easily and Leaves Your Hair Soft and Pluffy

Are you satisfied with the condition and appearance of your hair? Is it thick, soft, fluffy, and free from dandruff? If so, get from your druggist or toilet counter a bottle of Q-Ban (pronounced Ku-Ban) Liquid Shampoo. With each bottle are simple instructions for shampooing your hair at home and for making your hair soft, fluffy, radiant, long and free from dandruff. Q-Ban Liquid Shampoo is different from any other as it has a base of coconut oil which lathers freely, dries easily and leaves your hair soft, fluffy and radiantly beautiful. Don't use ordinary Soap Shampoos as they cause your hair to dry up and get brittle. Be satisfied and get "Q-Ban" as it is especially prepared and mixed in proper proportions. Such cleanliness, gained in this mild, healthful way, is the foundation of healthy hair.

You may enjoy such a thorough shampoo, and learn how to give yourself scientific scalp treatments without going to an expensive hair and scalp specialist. Try a bottle of Q-Ban Liquid Shampoo today and you will vote it the best shampoo you ever used. O'Donnell's Drug Store, Washington, D. C.

MORE D.C. BUSINESS URGED ON BANKERS

Speakers at Annual Banquet
Stress Necessity of Encouraging Local Capital.

"Do more business with us and less with Wall Street," was the keynote of the elaborate banquet last night at the Willard Hotel given by the members of the Washington Stock Exchange to 200 Washington bankers, brokers and business men.

The rejuvenation of transactions in local securities and the financial aid and development of home industries and corporations were strongly urged by President Eugene E. Thompson and Frank J. Hogan, the principal speakers of the evening. The speakers deplored the condition into which local securities had fallen as collateral for loans, and declared that unless Washington bankers and business men helped the public utility companies, those organizations would "go to the wall."

Urges Exchange Business.
President Thompson called attention to the activity on the Washington Stock Exchange in 1905, when a day's business involved the exchange of securities and stocks amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, while at present the sessions of the stock exchange are poorly attended and the business transacted inconsequential.

One of the features of the evening's entertainment was the distribution of a profusely illustrated program, calling attention to some poignant facts relating to Washington finance.

"When we look over the country," one of these articles stated, "and see her population and her wealth, and when we think Washington is the Capital of this great nation, and then when we look at Washington and see her increase in population and in wealth, and when we see her people buying $150,000,000 Liberty bonds, and we see her bank deposits of $180,000,000, we wonder why it should be necessary for her corporations and industries to beg the bankers of other cities to loan them the money to develop Washington."

"And we wonder why our local securities are a drug on the market, why our exchange rate has dropped from $10,000 to nothing. "And when we rack our brains trying to think of the answer, we get out the ouija board and it tells us that Congress don't love us and has made us a political guinea pig, and when some Congressman discovers a municipal cure-all he injects it into the Washington body politic. And if the guinea pig recovers, they try it at home. And if the guinea pig dies, well, well, well, a guinea pig anyhow. "And then the ouija board tells us it is crawling banking to loan all of your money out of town and depreciate the value of your securities until your depositors are broke and can no longer deposit."

Hogan Flays Treasury.
Mr. Hogan presented statistics showing that at the time of the February call of the Comptroller of the Currency, February 28, 1920, national banks, trust companies and savings banks at Washington had on call in New York $22,180,000.

He flayed the new practice of the Treasury Department in refusing to deposit with the local banks the tax funds of the District, and declared "that is a situation which will necessarily hurt our community."

Mr. Thompson said Washington bank clearings had doubled in the last five years.

"No one can say there are not greater things in store for Washington," he declared. "We have taken tremendous strides forward in recent years, and it is the duty of the business men of the city to get behind the industrial development of Washington."

Senator Miles Fendexter praised the progressive spirit displayed by the speakers.

"Your money ought to be entrusted at home," he said. "I look forward with great optimism to the solution of the financial difficulties of Washington."

The entertainment of the evening was augmented by professional and semi-professional vaudeville and musical numbers. Arthur B. Pierce and George O'Connor were heard in their favorite vaudeville selections.

EFFICIENT WORK GETS PENSION CLERK NEW JOB

As a reward for efficient work the commissioner of pensions has promoted John S. Beach, an official in the Bureau of Pensions, to be chief of the new retirement division created under the Sterling-Leibach bill.

The appointment was made by Mr. Beach in behalf of Federal pensioners since 1916. He drafted the Wadsworth Federal employees' retirement bill in 1917, and was active in support of the retirement measure which has just become law.

Mr. Beach is president of Local No. 2, Federal Employees' Union, and has had an active career in working for the betterment of conditions of Government employees.

W. JETT LAUCK WILL ADDRESS CITY CLUB

W. Jett Lauck, economist, will be the principal speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the City Club tonight at the Willard Hotel. Mr. Lauck recently attracted nation-wide attention when he made public certain figures and statements regarding the big industries of the country.

The question of the club's new building project will be brought up at the meeting and a special committee of which Maurice D. Rosenberg is chairman, will report on the progress of financing the building.

The meeting will be concluded with a program of several musical and vaudeville numbers.

The ice cream in question was made in Cleveland early this morning and is now on its way to this city by airplane. The cream is being carried in a newly designed iceless container which is being tested by manufacturers. The container is patterned after the Thermopack. Similar work is being carried on by the Bureau of Standards and the container will be carefully examined by bureau experts upon its arrival.

The airplane in which the cream is being carried is a three passenger Dayton-Wright plane. It left Cleveland at 11 o'clock. Ralph A. Lee, of Omaha and W. E. Telling, of Cleveland, representatives of the firm which manufactured the ice cream are passengers in the machine.

The ice cream will be served at Rauscher's tonight after a few gallons have been sent to the White House. Washington ice cream manufacturers, including the Chapin-Sacks, Fussell-Young and Carry companies, are in charge of the event. George Sacks, of Chapin-Sacks, is chairman of the committee in charge.

Today's event is a preliminary to "National Ice Cream Day," which will be celebrated throughout the country Thursday. At tonight's banquet at Rauscher's ice cream manufacturers from all parts of the country will speak, and arrangements for the celebration of ice cream day will be made.

TOMORROW IS NATIONAL ICE CREAM DAY

Ice Cream is a Food
Ice Cream combines the strength and nourishment of food with the delicacy and refreshment of the richest dessert. Ice Cream is ideal for youth and age. It sustains, strengthens and it is equally good in the home and hospital. For convalescence it is unsurpassed because of its ease of digestion.

Ice Cream contains more food than an equal weight of meat, fish or eggs. Its freshness is always assured by its frozen condition.

Carry Ice Cream Company,
Fussell-Young Company,
Chapin & Sacks Company,

This day will be celebrated in millions of homes in all sections. For the occasion, and for this day only, your dealer will sell the same delicious ice cream that you always buy, at 25c per quart in a Thermopak for $1.50. Combination sale price $1.75. This day opens the great ice cream season. It will properly introduce the Thermopak, the greatest single improvement since iceless refrigeration.

25c a Quart in a Thermopak

The dealer knows that when you have a Thermopak he can give you far better service and satisfaction with your ice cream. The Thermopak keeps ice cream hard two to four hours without ice or salt. True, it saves time and labor for the dealer, but it saves money for you and gives you ice cream for dinner, as cool and delicious as the moment you bought it, and without waste or loss of any kind.

Go in to your confectioner or druggist tomorrow—get a quart of ice cream, put up in a Thermopak. You will have the pleasure of ice cream, ice cold for dinner. Your home will have for years to come the hundreds of advantages and economies that the Thermopak gives. The Thermopak keeps liquids and solids hot or cold. It is better for butter than a refrigerator. It holds the temperature of hot coffee, ices, sherbets, whipped cream, gelatines, for many hours. In thousands of homes the Thermopak is eliminating the annoyance and disappointment of poor desserts on hot days.

Purpose of National Ice Cream Day

The remarkably low price is made possible by the Thermopak Company to encourage wider use of ice cream as a food in the home and to demonstrate the usefulness of the Thermopak. Order your favorite brand—Carry's Ice Cream, Fussell-Young Ice Cream, The "Velvet Kind."
